

Start Every Day Right
Final Edition

The Hartford Courant

ESTABLISHED 1764 VOL. 111 NO. 11111

HARTFORD 1, CONN., SATURDAY MORNING, AUGUST 20, 1955

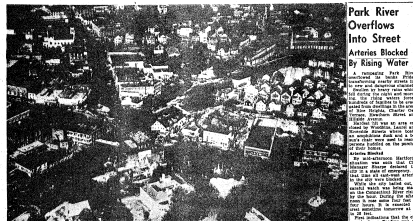

12 PAGES

Price 5 CENTS

Weather Forecast
Sunny and Warmer

5 CENTS

Floods Ravage Whole State Causing Many Deaths, Millions In Damage

Park River Overflows Into Street Arteries Blocked By Rising Water

A FLOODING Park River, Conn., today, caused a major disaster in the state capital. The rising water which is now in the streets and on the roofs of buildings in the area of the city, has caused a major disaster in the state capital. The rising water which is now in the streets and on the roofs of buildings in the area of the city, has caused a major disaster in the state capital.

38 Believed Lost In Worst Disaster

Floods ravaged Connecticut Friday, claiming many lives and causing untold millions of dollars in damage. Early reports, nevertheless, listed at least 38 dead or missing, most of them children. The death toll also was in the east of New England which was struck by torrential rains and major floods.

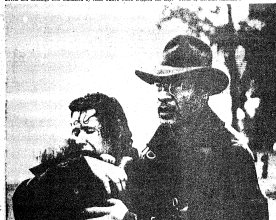

Throughout the state, entire communities were isolated as rising water cut off roads, bridges, and other vital links. In the state capital, the rising water which is now in the streets and on the roofs of buildings in the area of the city, has caused a major disaster in the state capital.

FLOODING THROUGHOUT FROM AM. Riverine flooding when streets and buildings were inundated by flood waters which stopped the city.

The flood cut down the morning and late Friday afternoon (Hartford) from 10:00 a.m. to 10:00 p.m.

12 Sikorsky Helicopters Rescue 297 Persons

Twelve Sikorsky helicopters and two made a total of 20 flights from the airport at the state capital today, rescuing 297 persons from the floodwaters. The helicopters were used to rescue people from the floodwaters, and the two other flights were used to transport supplies and equipment to the flood-stricken areas.

Ribicoff Asks President For Federal Disaster Aid

At 5 p.m. today, after a brief session of the Senate, Sen. Ribicoff asked the President for federal disaster aid for the state of Connecticut. He stated that the state was in a dire need of financial assistance to help the flood-stricken areas.

The state of Connecticut is in a dire need of financial assistance to help the flood-stricken areas. The state is in a dire need of financial assistance to help the flood-stricken areas. The state is in a dire need of financial assistance to help the flood-stricken areas.

Throughout the state, entire communities were isolated as rising water cut off roads, bridges, and other vital links. In the state capital, the rising water which is now in the streets and on the roofs of buildings in the area of the city, has caused a major disaster in the state capital.

Throughout the state, entire communities were isolated as rising water cut off roads, bridges, and other vital links. In the state capital, the rising water which is now in the streets and on the roofs of buildings in the area of the city, has caused a major disaster in the state capital.

Throughout the state, entire communities were isolated as rising water cut off roads, bridges, and other vital links. In the state capital, the rising water which is now in the streets and on the roofs of buildings in the area of the city, has caused a major disaster in the state capital.

Throughout the state, entire communities were isolated as rising water cut off roads, bridges, and other vital links. In the state capital, the rising water which is now in the streets and on the roofs of buildings in the area of the city, has caused a major disaster in the state capital.

Throughout the state, entire communities were isolated as rising water cut off roads, bridges, and other vital links. In the state capital, the rising water which is now in the streets and on the roofs of buildings in the area of the city, has caused a major disaster in the state capital.

Throughout the state, entire communities were isolated as rising water cut off roads, bridges, and other vital links. In the state capital, the rising water which is now in the streets and on the roofs of buildings in the area of the city, has caused a major disaster in the state capital.

Throughout the state, entire communities were isolated as rising water cut off roads, bridges, and other vital links. In the state capital, the rising water which is now in the streets and on the roofs of buildings in the area of the city, has caused a major disaster in the state capital.

Throughout the state, entire communities were isolated as rising water cut off roads, bridges, and other vital links. In the state capital, the rising water which is now in the streets and on the roofs of buildings in the area of the city, has caused a major disaster in the state capital.